CSST Codes, Standards, Listings, and Instructions: Differences and Impact

The design and installation of CSST gas piping systems are governed by national model and state fuel gas codes, national product standards, manufacturer's installation instructions, and listings from national testing agencies. Many times these various governing documents are not synchronized and/or modified to suit local building practices. This presentation will review the differences between codes, standards, and instructions and discuss the latest technical requirements for protection from lightning damage. You will also learn what to look for when you run across an older installation where yellow coated CSST was installed. The meetings will begin at 10:30 a.m. with lunch to follow. The cost is $25.00 per person. Please submit the registration form as soon as possible. APGA reserves the right to cancel a meeting if adequate registration is not received.
